

Resource 4: Generic Moderation Policy

On this website you can post comments which will remain publicly viewable by others using the site. These comments are governed by a moderation policy, to ensure they remain within the law and appropriate to this site. As a result, all comments posted to this site may be moderated by <INSERT ORGANISATION NAME> in order to ensure these rules are followed.

As a rule, we want to encourage you to discuss and comment freely using this site, however any content submitted by site users may be edited, moved, merged or deleted at any time entirely at the discretion of the moderators. Content likely to have this happen to it includes;

- Personal or confidential information relating to yourself or others, especially information which is personally identifying such as name, address, etc.
- Threats or incitement to violence
- Duplicate or similar content to that already existing on the site
- Spam or content advertising commercial products, services or events without permission
- Obscene content such as pornography, gore or content otherwise likely to alarm or offend
- Any other content liable to violate the law, such as libel or copyright infringement

In addition to moderating content, moderators reserve the unrestricted right to temporarily or permanently ban any user from using the site, including banning by IP address or range. Such bans will normally only ever take place for severe or repeated breaches of this moderation policy.

This moderation policy may be subject to alteration at any time by the website owners, who will make reasonable efforts to ensure that all site users are aware of these changes as soon as they occur.

If you have any queries, comments or concerns about this policy, how it is being implemented or content which may be in breach of it, please contact us at <INSERT CONTACT DETAILS>.

Taken from www.gezsmith.com